THIRD RAIL BOILS MILK.

Can Drops From Wagon on Trolley Track and Causes Great Blaze.

New York, July 26.—The third rail served a new purpose on the Brooklyn bridge, a whole can of forty quarts of milk having been boiled to a turn and the can nearly melted before the police and bridge engineers knocked the can into the East river.

It was about 2 o'clock when a shower of flame was seen to shoot up from the third rail near the north roadway, about twenty-five feet from the Brooklyn tower. The flame went up high in the air; and as an elevated train passed the shoe which rides on the third rail struck the can of milk that had mysteriously appeared on the track between the structural iron work and the rail without breaking the electrical contact.

Then the fire began to flame up, and the police ran for balls of water. Incidentally they sent word to the engineer at the Manhattan end of the bridge. They then boarded an elevated train which had become stalled, and tried to put out the fire with a fire extinguisher obtained from one of the cars. This would not work, and the flames continued to shoot in the air until a force of men from the engineer's department arrived, who were provided with rubber gloves and planks.

With a big piece of timber they managed to dislodge the milk can and throw it down to the river with the milk, which by this time was boiling merrily. Traffic was delayed for fifteen minutes and many persons were frightened.

Just how the can of milk got on the track the police were unable to find out, but as several heavily laden milk wagons had crossed the bridge shortly before it is supposed that a can had dropped from a wagon which was running on the trolley tracks.

FISH STORY COSTLY.

Anglers, Because of Tale They Told, Are Fined $25 Each.

Lewistown, Pa., July 26.—Lewis L. Peters and Jesse Haffey, young men of this city, were brought before Justice Patton by Fish and Game Warden H. T. Shoop and fined $5 each and costs for fishing with outlines between sunrise and sunset.

Some time ago Peters and Haffey were fishing in the Lewistown narrows, when a spoon fish weighing seventeen pounds was thrown from a train on the Pennsylvania railroad, and it is alleged, was picked up by Peters. The story spread about that Peters had shot the fish near Lewistown dam, and Peters, it is said, denied that the fish had fallen from the train. In telling the tale, however, he unconsciously let drop the fact that he had been fishing with an outline illegally. This fact appeared in the newspaper, and Commissioner Meehan of Harrisburg, seeing it, sent instructions to proceed against Peters.

The warden has written the department regarding the spoon fish, the shooting of which he says is illegal. Peters must either go before the justice and swear that he found the fish along the railroad tracks, or pay a fine of $25 for taking it illegally.

Western Counties Are Preparing to Plant Winter Wheat.

The following are the summaries of the weekly climate and crop report for Kansas issued today by Director Jennings of the weather bureau.

GENERAL CONDITIONS.

A cool week, with light showers in the central northern counties, the southeastern counties and the southern from Morton to Sumner; heavy rains in the western counties, the central and northwestern counties, in Cowley, Butler and Chase, and from Topeka to Ottawa, with very heavy rains in Pawnee and Brown.

Wheat harvest is finished in most of the counties; rains prevented finishing in a few. Threshing is becoming general, usually developing a better yield than anticipated, though the quality is not so good. The oats have mostly been cut but the crop is a poor one. Corn has improved and is growing rapidly, much of it is being cultivated, some has been laid by, and some fields have not been touched. It is tasseling in the north and silking in the central counties. Haying is being pushed, both tame and prairie, and in Chautauqua county the second crop of prairie hay is being cut, both the tame and wild hay crops are unusually heavy. The second crop of alfalfa is being cut in several counties and has been secured in others, and is a fine crop. Pastures

CLAIMS DAMAGES FROM DEER.

Professor Can't Drive Animals From His Garden.

Egg Harbor City, N. J., July 26.—Prof. H. C. Schlichting of this city, principal of the Germania public schools, has lodged a claim with the state game commission through Warren John Schuster for damages caused by a herd of deer liberated in the woods near here by the commission early this spring.

The deer made nightly visits to the professor's gardens, destroying everything that grows. Various means have been adopted to drive them off but they seem to understand that they have the law's protection.

TO BE FIXED AT LAST.

Washburn Macadam Road Won't Be Allowed to Go to Ruin.

The county commissioners have awarded the contract for repaving the Washburn macadam road to E. L. Wilcox for $25 a yard. The road is as billy as a rough sea and the commissioners wish to have it smoothed over. The road was built by government engineers who came to Topeka to show the people how to build macadam roads. The "experts" showed the people how not to build them.

DIDN'T TRY TO KILL HIM.

Policeman Henderson Must Answer for Only Simple Assault.

Policeman Henderson was before the city court this morning for his preliminary hearing on the charge of assaulting Judge McCabe. The charge was that Judge McCabe decided that as Henderson did not injure a child seriously, he should not be held on the charge of assault. Henderson was held on the charge of assault and battery.

Dug Up Watch Lost in War Days.

Hanover, Pa., July 26.—While digging around an old tree on his farm in Cumberland township, Adams county, John H. Bushman unearthed a gold watch in a good state of preservation, even the crystal and hands being in excellent condition. It was found when the Twelfth and Second corps hospital were encamped in 1863, and is doubtless the property of some Union officer.
